LSLA Meeting Cancelled

LSLA Co-Chair Takenaga, who we are told was not planning on attending the event, has resigned. LSLA Chair Rachel Hawkrige is quite unwell and has been hospitalized. Pre-registration was weak. This newspaper's attention has been drawn to other issues militating against the success of the event; these may be covered in the future.

Some State Chairs will be assembling Friday, August 19 in Columbus, Ohio, the day before the LNC meeting.

LP Oregon Sets State Convention

The 2011 Libertarian Party of Oregon annual convention is being held on March 12th at the Phoenix Inn Suites in Lake Oswego. Business may include electing officers, electing Judicial Committee members, and amending its constitution and bylaws. The full details, including a schedule of events, are still being worked out.

New Hampshire Liberty Forum Cancelled

The February 2011 New Hampshire Liberty Forum was cancelled by its organizers. Our New Hampshire sources suggest that registrations had been lagging.

LP California Sets State Convention

The Libertarian Party of California State Convention has been set for April 8-10. The convention will be held in Nevada. The venue is Harvey's and Harrah's Resorts and Casinos, 18 Highway 50, Stateline, NV 89489.

Libertarian State Parties Raise Federal Money

The end of year FEC filings show how much Federal money various Libertarian State Parties around the country have raised. Only the states and one county that file with the FEC are shown. Only Federal money is reported; some states also have separate non-Federal accounts. For example, Massachusetts files its state reports with the State government, and raises more money for Non-Federal purposes not shown here than for Federal purposes as shown here. (Between 2007 and 2010 Massachusetts more than doubled its income.)

Illinois	$64371.85
Indiana	$47907.39
Florida	$12177.51
Texas	$5696.00
Nevada	$5411.32
Massachusetts	$3497.04
Clark County (Nevada)	$1341.00
South Carolina	$481.54
Arizona	$50

If your state party wants to indulge in Federal Election Activity, such as registering voters within a few months of a Federal election, even if you do not have candidates in the election, you may want to look carefully at whether you need to start filing with the FEC.

Assange News Even Better Than Previously Reported

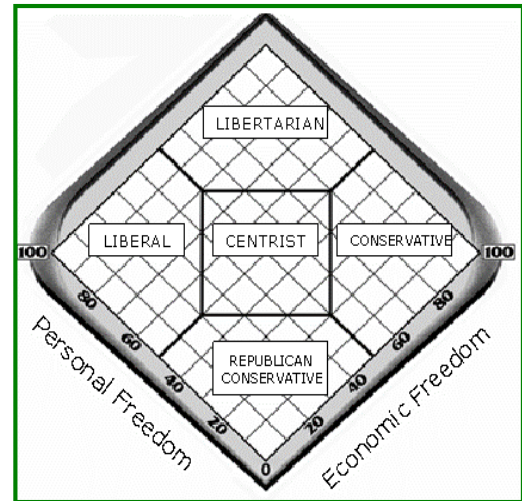

Last month, we were able to report that Wikileaks leader Julian Assange had spoken highly of Libertarians. The report was based, we gathered, on a leak of a to-be-published press interview. The full interview is now available at Forbes blogs.forbes.com/andygreenberg/2010/11/29/an-interview-with-wikileaks-julian-assange, and what Assange is actually there quoted as saying is even better than what we had been told, namely he writes:

"It's not correct to put me in any one philosophical or economic camp, because I've learned from many. But one is American libertarianism, market libertarianism. So as far as markets are concerned I'm a libertarian, but I have enough expertise in politics and history to understand that a free market ends up as monopoly unless you force them to be free."

Massachusetts Circulates Newsletter

The Libertarian Association of Massachusetts has begun circulating PDFs of its monthly newsletter Mass Liberty to Libertarian State Chairs across America. The newsletter is regularly mailed in paper and electronic form to LAMA members and out-of-state supporter-donors. The circulation, which is not expected to happen every month, is intended to bring state party officers together across America. LAMA also occasionally circulates its newsletter to National Party members who reside in Massachusetts but who are not state Association members.

The Libertarian Association of Massachusetts is one of the few Libertarian groups in this country that successfully publishes a full-color newsletter, having both paper and electronic editions, that is actually mailed monthly. However, for excellence in appearance and great frequency of publication, we would be remiss not to note the superb Libertarian Party of Georgia electronic newsletter.

Rhode Island Party Starts Issuing Press Releases

Having returned from near-death, the LPRI has started advocating for Libertarian positions:

The Libertarian Party of Rhode Island supports sensible marijuana reform.

Senators Joshua Miller (D – Cranston) and Rep. John G. Edwards (D – Portsmouth, Tiverton) plan on introducing legislation that would replace the current criminal penalty for possession of up to an ounce of marijuana with a simple civil fine.

"This would end the current practice of wasting OUR R.I. tax dollars on arrest and prosecution for a modest amount of marijuana." says Tony Jones, LPRI Treasurer.

LPRI believes that in our current economic situation this legislation would save the state millions in law

Remember, 2012 is a Presidential Election year, and there will be some need for money for ballot access. Historically, the year before a Presidential election has often been used to sock cash away for the election year, but not this time.

The budget is balanced by assuming that the National Committee members themselves will raise an extra $100,000 (this year, that number was $10,000) and that recurring contributions will grow from $352,000 to $408,000. Membership was assumed to remain stable at 2010 levels of 15,000, and then add 1500 new members. Unfortunately, those are not your 2010 membership levels, but perhaps member+donor is meant. (Actual 2010 membership levels averaged below 14,500).

LNC Seemingly Violates Bylaws, Lets ExComm Appoint New Treasurer

When James Oaksun resigned as LNC Treasurer, the post of Treasurer became vacant, leading to technical issues with FEC regulations. The National Party Bylaws clearly and specifically state:

The National Committee shall appoint new officers if vacancies occur, such officers to complete the term of the office vacated.

In your Editor's opinion, that Bylaw is completely unambiguous, and says the LNC, not people to whom the LNC claims it can delegate authority, may appoint a Treasurer.

Historically, when Deryl Martin resigned as LNC

Treasurer, it is my recollection that LNC Chair Neale appointed an acting Treasurer to perform the activities mandated by Federal Law, until a Treasurer could be appointed by the LNC. (There is an exact title in the FEC regulations for the assistant treasurer, FEC regulations indicating that a reporting committee may specify an assistant treasurer who may perform the duties of the treasurer if the Treasurer's post becomes vacant.)

Instead, the LNC allowed its Executive Committee to appoint Bill Redpath as Treasurer, even though there was initially support on the LNC for a different candidate. Support for another candidate? As forwarded to us, LNC California Regional Representative Daniel Wiener urged the election of runner-up in votes Aaron Starr:

Dear Colleagues,

Since this matter seems to be coming to a head quickly, I'm going to throw in my two cents worth and suggest that we select Aaron Starr as Treasurer.

There are a lot of obvious advantages to doing so. Aaron is a CPA and the immediate past Treasurer, and is intimately familiar with our accounting system and procedures, having created much of the existing infrastructure. He is an expert at spreadsheets and at financial analysis, and probably deserves a significant amount of credit for the Libertarian Party's greatly improved balance sheet over the past several years. He'll be able to provide the transparency and detailed information which the recent motions for amending the Policy Manual to enhance budget reports indicate that we all want.

If ever the cliché hit the ground running was appropriate, then selecting Aaron Starr as Treasurer would be that case.

The only potential argument I know of against choosing Aaron is that he lost the election to James Oaksun. I think James ran a good campaign and made a good case for himself in that race, and clearly more people preferred him than Aaron. But I don't think that's the same as opposing Aaron per se, or believing that he would not also do a good job as Treasurer. Yes, there are a few individuals who seem to have a vendetta against Aaron; we've all just received a couple of emails which contained some vicious personal attacks. I deeply resent that kind of character assassination, and believe it has no place in the Libertarian Party. I am certainly not going to let it deter me from supporting Aaron if I'm convinced he's the most qualified person for the job.

Let me mention that I appreciate Bill Redpath's willingness to step up, but I think his efforts are far more valuable as the point man for ballot access, where he has unique expertise. There's also a certain amount of tension between a ballot access advocate and the Treasurer. The Treasurer sometimes finds himself in the 'Scrooge' position of advising caution on expenditures, and that's a good trait to have even if the rest of the LNC ultimately over-rules him. Aaron can definitely be a Scrooge when it's necessary. And Aaron will produce the spreadsheets to lay out the facts so we can all make a well-informed decision.

One final comment: I've known Aaron since he was a teenager, and in fact I can take credit (blame?) for getting him involved in the Libertarian Party when I ran for Assembly back in 1980. He's made his share of mistakes over the years, but one very valuable trait I've observed in him is that he learns from those mistakes and works damn hard to correct them. I like to joke that Aaron used to be an arrogant, snot-nosed young kid, but now he's a lot older. Joking aside, he is also continuing to mature. And I think he'll turn out to be a very good choice if we pick him to fill this extremely critical vacancy.

A contrary opinion on this choice was reportedly expressed by LNC Chair Mark Hinkle:

Dan,

Sorry, but politically this would be a very very bad move on the part of the LNC.

Overturing the will of the convention will destroy a lot of the credibility that we've restored since the St. Louis convention.

My assessment of what happened in St. Louis was that James Oaksun's election was as much a rejection of Aaron as it was an affirmation of James.

We don't need to get embroiled in another messy situation and that's exactly what selecting Aaron would do.

We're building a consensus and re-establishing good working relations with our members and affiliates, let's not undo that good will by inviting controversy.

Bill's an easy, quick, and sure choice.

Let's appoint Bill and move on
.....Mark Hinkle, LNC Chair

Readers may recall LNC parlemenoonians claiming that any action that violates Bylaws or Roberts would taint everything later done by the organization. The same claims appear to be missing in action here. Readers in Oregon may find it interesting to compare the rationales offered by LNC Member Dan Karlan with respect to Oregon with positions on this issue.

Knedler Appointed to LNC ExComm

LNC Regional Representative Kevin Knedler of Ohio has been appointed to the LNC Executive Committee. The vote was 11-0. Voting in favor were LNC members Craig, Flood, Karlan, Lark, Mattson, Redpath, Root, Rutherford, Ruwart, Wiener, and Wolf.

Can He Actually Stop with One?

or

Will Your Preacher Be Next on the Presidential Death List?

(First published on LibertyForAll.net)

Last year the Obama Administration took a step without historical precedent. It ordered the assassination of an American citizen.

The citizen is Anwar al-Awlaki, described by the New York Times as “an eloquent Muslim cleric.” Anwar al-Awlaki, born in 1971 in New Mexico, is a native-born citizen, not a foreigner. There appears to be agreement that he has not planted explosives, nor has he launched military attacks. He has preached, and preached inspiringly.

The ancient history of the Abrahamic religions — Judaism, Christianity, and Islam — is filled with prophets and preachers, men and women who spoke truth to power, men and women who warned Kings and Presidents and those who lived in proud towers that they had turned their back on virtue and justice. Some were heard. Some were ignored.

Powerful secular rulers fear truth. When prophets and preachers spoke the truth, they faced the wrath of great kings. Jezebel slaughtered prophets by the tens and hundreds. Nebuchadnezzar strove to execute Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego, to no avail. Martin Luther King invoked Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego in his letter from the Birmingham jail, writing of the deeds leading to his incarceration “one has a moral responsibility to disobey unjust laws.” His letter showed an equal duty, the duty to preach against unjust acts. And that is the crime of which Anwar al-Awlaki is accused: preaching.

Of course, it is not given to men to know for certain which preachers speak the truth, and which are in error. The “Letter from the Birmingham Jail” was a response to another letter, “A Call for Unity,” from eight Birmingham preachers, Bishops, a Pastor, and a Rabbi, giving advice that was quite opposite to Martin Luther King’s.

Because we cannot know with utter certainty what is truth, we reject the example of Jezebel. We reject the example of the Englishmen who burned Joan of Arc and put to death all manner of ministers. In America, we have until now rejected religious persecution in favor of freedom of religion and freedom of speech.

Barack Obama has changed all that. Barack Obama has ordered the assassination of a man of faith, for the crime for preaching. You may say 'but that man is an Islamite. Why should I fear what Obama does to a worshipper of a false god?'

Do you truly believe that men and women of your faith never preach truth to power? Are your sermons all spoken by cowards, men so lacking in righteousness that they make sacrifice to Nebo and Nergal lest they offend the King of Babylon?

Anwar al-Awlaki may be the first, though thus far like Shadrach he has walked through the furnace and taken no harm. Do you truly believe he will be the last?

Or will you wait until your preacher gives some President mortal offense, so that the President's men come and take him away? Must it be your preacher added to the Presidential death list before you see the error of these ways?

Barack Obama has shown himself by his execution order to be the second Nebuchadnezzar, the imperial potentate who has rejected our secular faith, our Constitution. America should reject Obama's false ways. It should reject the false prophets of his National Security Council, the men who bow before Obama chanting that an American President is The Lord of Life and Death.

We should through our Constitution and laws and legal political processes reject Obama and his false prophets of death, for if we do not there will soon enough come among us a messenger, and the messenger's words for our Republic will be “mene mene tekel upharsin”

... you have been measured and found wanting and the number of your days is no more.

LP Texas Calls for Flood's Removal from LNC

The Libertarian Party of Texas has called for the removal of Regional Representative Stewart Flood from the LNC. If Flood were to cease to be a member of the LNC, his position would be filled by a vote of State Chairs in his part of his region. The letter as forwarded to this newspaper reads

"Fellow Chairs of Region 1,

Yesterday our state committee met and discussed issues concerning Region 1 of the LP national committee. Over the past few months since the LNC meeting in New Orleans I have been asked to personally weigh in on these matters. I wanted to have our state committee involved in these decisions. The Texas LP made 2 decisions yesterday:

1. We want Stewart Flood removed as a representative for Region 1.
2. We ask for Lee Wrights to be considered as a replacement for the vacant representative position.

Additionally, John Jay Myers has expressed interest in serving in one of the vacant at large positions on the LNC. I realize that the LNC, not the region, votes on that matter but our state committee wants to express its support for John Jay in that position. I have declined filling one of the At Large positions simply because of my workload. I very much enjoyed serving on the LNC in the past and appreciated being considered for one of the vacant positions.

Yours in Liberty,

Pat Dixon
Chair, Libertarian Party of Texas"

Meanwhile, we are advised that LNC Alternate Guy McLendon has urged the LNC that Stewart Flood be promoted to an At-Large seat. Coverage of the LNC plans to fill the At-Large representative vacancies appears later in this issue.

Region Four Alternate Wills Resigns, Starts New Party

Libertarian National Committee Alternative Regional Representative Don Wills of Wyoming has resigned from the National Committee and our National Party. He and other Wyoming former Libertarians are forming a new national political party, with a final name to be determined, using the provisional working name "Country Party". In a message sent to the entire LNC, and forwarded to this newspaper, Wills writes

Hello LP leaders,

A new chairman of the Wyoming LP was elected in convention today, I have resigned from the Wyoming Libertarian Party, and I am hereby resigning as Region 4 Alternate Rep to the LNC and from the LP.

I have come to the conclusion that I am wasting my time promoting the Libertarian Party. My reasoning in coming to this conclusion is as follows:

The non-initiation of force principle, the most fundamental principle of the LP, is the problem. Until leadership and membership can agree on the true meaning of that principle, or until the principle is altered or discarded, the LP will continue to languish. The reason that the principle is the problem can be reduced to this question: Is all taxation theft? If so, then the existence of any government whatsoever is contrary to the fundamental principle of the LP, and the Constitution is an immoral document which violates that principle.

I do not believe that all taxation is theft. I believe in the Constitution. It's not a perfect document by any means, and it most surely has been ignored for many decades. But I believe it is our best hope for restoring liberty in our land.

My belief system is very similar to Ron Paul's. And like Ron Paul, I have decided that the LP, while useful as an educational tool, is not a viable electoral vehicle to try to move our country back to the principles written in our Constitution.

The Country Party already has a web page up and running at CountryParty.Org. The Country Party is generally conservative. It rejects the Republicans for a list of reasons beginning

"The GOP-controlled Senate and House both passed The Patriot Act without even reading the bill. The GOP continues its unwavering, strong support for The Federal Reserve, a secretive cabal of central bankers beholden only to Wall Street."

The Country Party similarly rejects the Libertarian Party

"The LP strongly promotes open borders, legalization of all drugs and abolition of taxation as key issues in their platforms."

while the Constitution Party

"is generally viewed by voters as a bunch of intolerant religious zealots who wish to impose their moral values on others by law and send doctors and women who participate in abortions to jail, without exception."

The Wyoming State Country party is planning a convention for late March or early April.

LNC Member Norm Olsen Praises LNC Staff, Criticizes Budget

We have had forwarded the following from the LNC-discuss list:

Many many thanks . . .to the staff, and especially to Dr. Lark and Mr. Redpath, for getting a budget proposal together within the requested time frame.

We as the national committee have a fiduciary responsibility to our membership to see that monies donated are used wisely and for the purposes donated. Our future success at raising funds in the future depends more on this than any other aspect of our organization. Having a budget in place is an important part of that responsibility. I realize that my motion bent the standard procedure substantially, but I am convinced that having a budget is important enough to justify such deviations. Notwithstanding the following remarks, I greatly appreciate that we now have a document which we can use as a base to start with in developing a plan for 2011.

That being said, I am disappointed that the proposed budget of the Libertarian National Committee, a non-profit organization, proposes to spend 10 times as much money on Administration and Fundraising than it plans to spend on a very liberal interpretation of Program Expenses. That works out to 90% on Fundraising and Administration and 10% for Program Expenses. While an improvement from last year's budget for which I'm thankful; I believe this leaves us well short of where our membership thinks we should be. I suggest that our membership report numbers express that vividly.

I know of no successful non-profit organization which has this poor a ratio. I suggest that a reasonable goal for a 2011 budget would be not less than 20% for Program Expenses. I hope you will join me in an effort to achieve that result. Like most every organization in our nation, we'll need to sharpen our pencils and cut expenses, improve efficiency, and increase revenues. Given a budget of $1.4 million, we need to be able to do more for "Affiliate Support" than $175 per affiliate per year. We need to do more for "Candidate, Campaign, & Initiatives" than what works out to $20 per affiliate per year.

I'm sharpening my pencil. I'm preparing to make some tough choices. I'll be communicating my ideas to you in the next few weeks. I hope y'all will be doing likewise.

Norm Olsen, Region 4 Representative
Libertarian National Committee

The Secret LNC e-Mail List

Readers who feel that the LNC should be open and aboveboard in its conduct of affairs, as opposed to having a ruling cabal plot in secret behind closed doors, may want to ask their LNC representatives to explain:

- the secret LNC email discussion list private-LNC@yahoogroups.com,
- whether the representatives think that it is appropriate to formulate LNC business while excluding some LNC members from the discussion,

- whether they knew that the use of "LNC" in the name by an LNC officer has legal implications,

And, most important,

- whether your representative has access to the secret LNC list private-LNC@yahoogroups.com.

LNC In Action

Wes Benedict has been reappointed as the National Party's Executive Director. Bill Redpath has been appointed to the LNC's Convention Oversight Committee

The National Committee is carrying out a plan to contact affiliates in different states, see if they are active, and find out what they are doing. The number of active affiliates has drifted up during the past year, and is now in the upper 40s.

National Party membership has had less encouraging trends. In October 2008, membership was up to 16099. At the end of 2009, that number was down to 14076. There have since been month-to-month fluctuations, but the January 2011 count of members was 13872. On the bright side, at the end of the year the LNC's cash on hand was almost up to $258,000, which is a recent record.

The LNC is debating whom they should appoint as At-Large LNC members. There are nominally two vacancies since David Nolan died and Bill Redpath was supposedly appointed as Treasurer. Known candidates include:

Judge Jim Gray
John Jay Myers
Rebecca Sink-Burris

LNC Appoints Wolf to Audit Committee

The Libertarian National Committee has appointed Andy Wolf to their Audit Committee. Voting in favor were LNC Members Craig, Goldstein, Karlan, Knedler, Kirkland, Lark, Lieberman, Olsen, Root, Ruwart, Wiener, and Visek. There were no votes against.
